View meal choices on digital menu boards...

Displaying meal-time options at different times of the day and seasonal offers is paramount for busy shoppers and travellers using the growing number of quick service restaurants. Single display screens or a 4-screen digital menu board above the counter helps customer choice.

For leisurely evening dining in restaurants, Repeat Signage presentations can tempt diners with images of delicious dishes, scrumptious desserts and tasty offers.

“We launched our restaurant in London. It features self-service touch screen technology and a digital menu board using Repeat Signage digital signage software. The concept at Velo is simple. Customers use the display screens above the counter to see the menus. Orders can be placed and paid for at the self-service touch screens, sited along the rear wall. The order is then collected at the pick up counter.”
